

WEBINAR: Remote Interpreting in Pediatric Therapy Settings

OCTOBER 20, 2022

6:00-7:30 pm ET

REGISTRATION FEE

- Students $15
- Members $20
- Non-members $30

CONTINUING EDUCATION

American Translators Association

1.5 CE points

Remote Interpreting in Pediatric Therapy Settings

PRESENTED BY INDIRA SULTANIĆ, PhD

This presentation explores remote interpreting in pediatric therapy settings. More specifically, it examines both the benefits and the challenges of remote interpreting in speech, physical, and occupational therapy settings. It considers how different remote communication platforms may impact role boundaries and turn-taking from both the provider's and the interpreter's perspective. With the disruptions caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, in the United States, language access was provided through remote telecommunication platforms, audio and/or video. Many of these platforms were not optimized nor designed for interpreting support. Service providers, interpreters, and their Limited English Proficient (LEP) clients, were faced with increased communication and logistical challenges and had to get creative in their endeavors in order to ensure minimal disruption and continuity of care and service provision.

[Language neutral]

INDIRA SULTANIĆ, PhD

Dr. Indira Sultanić is an Assistant Professor at Virginia Commonwealth University. She is a Certified Healthcare Interpreter™-Spanish and has worked in the language industry as a Project Manager, translator, interpreter, and language consultant for the past 14 years. Her teaching expertise includes medical, legal, and community interpreting, and translation. She is the vice president of the California Healthcare Interpreting Association (CHIA), and a member of several professional organizations. Dr. Sultanić has authored articles and book chapters on medical interpreter education and training, interpreting for vulnerable populations and unaccompanied refugee children in the U.S., and on remote interpreting in pediatric therapy settings.

REGISTER HERE!

(Registration deadline: October 19, 2022)

Questions? Contact us at notatranslators@gmail.com

ABOUT NOTA