Take It From Me: Strangers Do NOT Have The Best Candy

PRESENTED BY JOSEPH WOJOWSKI

From the 1970s to the '90s, public service announcements (PSAs) warned children about strangers and the enticing and alluring candies that they offer. I'm telling you now that the idea behind those PSAs serves us well in the 21st century. In this webinar, Joseph Wojowski will discuss the risks of trusting strangers with the assets most valuable to you and your company—your education and work history. He will share ways to safeguard yourself from those who wish to build and tarnish a new reputation based on your own and explore ways how to avoid falling prey to social engineering tactics.

JOSEPH WOJOWSKI

Joseph Wojowski is the Senior Translation Production Manager at PGLS and an Adjunct Professor of Localization Project Management at Middlebury Institute of International Studies teaching Data Security for Localization. Joseph is a French and Spanish into English translator with 17 years of experience in Translation and Localization as both a freelancer and a project manager in client services and the head of various translation departments. Joseph has presented on language technology and data security at various ATA Conferences and for regional chapters, including MATI, NOTA, and NETA. He is a newlywed and lives in Minneapolis with his wife, dog Dax, and lots of cats.
